SOME Gentlemen may be furprized to see an edition of Mr. GRAY'S POEMS printed at Glasgow, at the same time that they are printed for Mr. Dodsley at London. For their satisfaction the printers mention what follows.

The property belongs to the Author, and this edition is by his permiffion. As an expression of their high esteem and gratitude, they have endeavoured to print it in the best manner.

Mr. BEATTIE, Professor of Philosophy in the University of Aberdeen, first proposed this undertaking. When he found that it was most agreeable to the printers, he procured Mr. GRAY's consent, and transcribed the whole with accuracy. His transcription is followed in this Edition.

This is the first work in the Roman character which they have printed with so large a type; and they are obliged to Doctor Wilson for preparing so expeditiously, and with so much attention, characters of so beautiful a form.

LO! where the rofy-bosom'd Hours,
Fair Venus' train appear,
Disclose the long-expecting flowers,
And wake the purple year!
The Attic warbler pours her throat
Responsive to the cuckow's note,
The untaught harmony of spring:
While, whispering pleasure as they fly,
Cool Zephyrs, through the clear blue sky,
Their gather'd fragrance fling.

II.

Where-e'er the oak's thick branches stretch A broader browner shade,
Where-e'er the rude and moss-grown beech O'er-canopies the glade;
Beside some water's rushy brink,
With me the Muse shall sit, and think,
(At ease reclin'd in rustic state)
How vain the ardor of the croud,
How low, how indigent, the proud,
How little are the great.

III.

Still is the toiling hand of Care;
The panting herds repose;
Yet hark, how through the peopled air
The busy murmur glows!
The insect-youth are on the wing,
Eager to taste the honied spring,
And float amid the liquid noon;
Some lightly o'er the current skim,
Some show their gayly-gilded trim,
Quick-glancing to the sun.

IV.

To Contemplation's fober eye
Such is the race of man;
And they that creep, and they that fly,
Shall end where they began.
Alike the bufy and the gay
But flutter through life's little day,
In Fortune's varying colours dreft;
Brush'd by the hand of rough Mischance,
Or chill'd by Age, their airy dance
They leave, in dust to rest.

Methinks I hear, in accent low,
The sportive kind reply;
Poor Moralist! and what art thou!
A solitary sly!
Thy joys no glittering female meets,
No hive hast thou of hoarded sweets,
No painted plumage to display;
On hasty wings thy youth is flown;
Thy sun is set, thy spring is gone----We frolick, while 'tis May.

Still had she gaz'd; but midst the tide
Two beauteous forms were seen to glide,
The Genii of the stream;
Their scaly armour's Tyrian hue,

The hapless nymph, with wonder saw:

A whisker first, and then a claw,

YE distant spires, ye antique towers,
That crown the wat'ry glade,
Where grateful Science still adores
Her Henry's holy shade:
And ye, that from the stately brow
Of Windsor's heights th' expanse below
Of grove, of lawn, of mead survey,
Whose turf, whose shade, whose slowers among
Wanders the hoary Thames along
His silver-winding way.

II.

Ah happy hills! ah pleafing shade!
Ah fields, belov'd in vain!
Where once my careless childhood stray'd,
A stranger yet to pain!
I feel the gales, that from ye blow,
A momentary bliss bestow,
As waving fresh their gladsome wing,
My weary soul they seem to soothe,
And, redolent of joy and youth,
To breathe a second spring.

III.

Say, father Thames, for thou hast seen

Full many a sprightly race,

Disporting on thy margent green,

The paths of pleasure trace;

Who foremost now delight to cleave,

With pliant arms, thy glassy wave?

The captive linnet which enthral?

What idle progeny succeed

To chase the rolling circle's speed,

Or urge the flying ball?

IV.

While some, on earnest business bent,
Their murmuring labours ply,
Gainst graver hours, that bring constraint
To sweeten liberty;
Some bold adventurers disdain
The limits of their little reign,
And unknown regions dare descry;
Still as they run they look behind,
They hear a voice in every wind,
And snatch a fearful joy.

V.

Gay Hope is theirs, by Fancy fed,
Less pleasing when posses d;
The tear forgot as soon as shed,
The fun-shine of the breast.
Theirs buxom Health of rosy hue,
Wild Wit, Invention ever new,
And lively Chear of Vigour born;
The thoughtless day, the easy night,
The spirits pure, the slumbers light,
That sly th' approach of morn.

VI.

Alas! regardless of their doom,
The little victims play!
No sense have they of ills to come,
No care beyond to-day.
Yet see, how all around them wait
The ministers of human sate,
And black Missortune's baleful train!
Ah, show them where in ambush stand,
To seize their prey, the murderous band!
Ah, show them they are men!
VII.

These shall the fury passions tear,

The vultures of the mind,

Disdainful Anger, pallid Fear,

And Shame, that skulks behind;

Or pining Love shall waste their youth;

Or Jealousy, with rankling tooth,

That inly gnaws the secret heart;

And Envy wan, and saded Care,

Grim-visag'd comfortless Despair,

And Sorrow's piercing dart.

Ambition this shall tempt to rife;
Then whirl the wretch from high,
To bitter Scorn a facrifice,
And grinning Infamy.
The stings of Falshood those shall try,

And keen Remorse with blood desil'd,
And moody Madness laughing wild
Amidst severest woe.

The painful family of Death,
More hideous than their queen!

Now the rich stream of music winds along,
Deep, majestic, smooth, and strong,

Headlong, impetuous, see it pour:
The rocks, and nodding groves, rebellow to the roar.

THE author once had thoughts, in concert with a friend, of giving A HISTORY OF ENGLISH POETRY: in the introduction to it he meant to have produced fome specimens of the stile, that reigned in antient times among the neighbouring nations, or those who had subdued the greater part of this island, and were our progenitors. The following three imitations made a part of them.

FROM THE NORSE TONGUE.

IN the eleventh century, Sigurd Earl of the Orkney islands went, with a fleet of ships, and a considerable body of troops, into Ireland, to the affastance of Sigtryg with the silken beard, who was making war on his father-in-law Brian King of Dublin. The Earl and all his forces were cut to pieces, and Sigtryg was in danger of a total defeat: but the enemy had a greater loss by the death of Brian their King, who fell in the action.

On Christmas-day (the day of the battle) a native of Caithness in Scotland saw, at a distance, a number of persons, on horseback, riding full speed towards a hill, and seeming to enter into it. Curiosity led him to sollow them; till, looking through an opening in the rocks, he saw twelve gigantic sigures resembling women: they were all employed about a loom, and, as they wove, they sung the sollowing dreadful song; which when they had finished, they tore the web into twelve pieces, and, each taking her portion, gallop'd six to the north, and as many to the south.

Till full before his fearless eyes
The portals nine of hell arise.

By the moss-grown pile he sat,
Where long of yore to sleep was laid
The dust of the prophetic Maid.

The thrilling verse that wakes the dead:

Slowly breath'd a sullen sound.

OWEN's praise demands my song,

WRITTEN IN

A COUNTRY CHURCH-YARD.

THE Curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind flowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness, and to me.

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight, And all the air a solemn stillness holds, Save where the beetle wheels his drony slight, And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds;

Save that from yonder ivy-mantled tower
The moping owl does to the moon complain
Of fuch, as wand'ring near her fecret bower
Molest her antient, solitary reign.

Beneath those rugged elms, that yew-tree's shade, Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap, Each in his narrow cell for ever laid, The rude Foresathers of the hamlet sleep.

The breezy call of incense-breathing Morn,
The swallow twittering from the straw-built shed,
The cock's shrill clarion, or the echoing horn,
No more shall rouse them from their lowly bed.

For them no more the blazing hearth shall burn,
Or busy housewife ply her evening care;
No children run to lisp their sire's return,
Or climb his knees the envied kiss to share.

Oft did the harvest to their sickle yield,
Their furrow oft the stubborn glebe has broke:
How jocund did they drive their team afield!
How bow'd the woods beneath their sturdy stroke!

Let not Ambition mock their useful toil, Their homely joys, and destiny obscure; Nor Grandeur hear with a disdainful smile, The short and simple annals of the poor.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of pow'r,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Awaits alike th' inevitable hour.
The path of glory leads but to the grave.

Nor you, ye proud, impute to these the fault,
If Memory o'er their tomb no trophies raise,
Where through the long-drawn isle and fretted vault
The pealing anthem swells the note of praise.

Can storied urn or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can Honour's voice provoke the silent dust,
Or Flattery sooth the dull cold ear of Death?

Perhaps in this neglected spot is laid

Some heart once pregnant with celestial fire;

Hands, that the rod of empire might have sway'd,

Or wak'd to ecstacy the living lyre.

But Knowledge to their eyes her ample page
Rich with the spoils of time did ne'er unroll;
Chill Penury repress'd their noble rage,
And froze the genial current of the soul.

Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathom'd caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desart air.

Some village-Hampden, that with dauntless breast The little tyrant of his fields withstood; Some mute inglorious Milton here may rest, Some Cromwell guiltless of his country's blood. Th' applause of listening senates to command,
The threats of pain and ruin to despise,
To scatter plenty o'er a smiling land,
And read their history in a nation's eyes,

Their lot forbad: nor circumscrib'd alone
Their growing virtues, but their crimes confin'd;
Forbad to wade through slaughter to a throne,
And shut the gates of mercy on mankind;

The struggling pangs of conscious Truth to hide,
To quench the blushes of ingenuous Shame,
Or heap the shrine of Luxury and Pride
With incense kindled at the Muse's flame.

Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife,
Their sober wishes never learn'd to stray:
Along the cool sequester'd vale of life
They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.

Yet even these bones from insult to protect
Some frail memorial still erected nigh,
With uncouth rhimes and shapeless sculpture deckt,
Implores the passing tribute of a sigh.

Their name, their years, spelt by th' unletter'd Muse,
The place of same and elegy supply;
And many a holy text around she strews,
That teach the rustic Moralist to die.

For who, to dumb Forgetfulness a prey,
This pleasing anxious being e'er resign'd,
Left the warm precincts of the chearful day,
Nor cast one longing lingering look behind?

On some fond breast the parting soul relies,
Some pious drops the closing eye requires:
Even from the tomb the voice of Nature cries,
Even in our ashes live their wonted fires.

For thee, who, mindful of th'unhonour'd dead, Dost in these lines their artless tale relate; If chance, by lonely Contemplation led, Some kindred spirit shall enquire thy fate;

Haply, some hoary-headed swain may say,

- 'Oft have we feen him, at the peep of dawn,
- ' Brushing with hasty steps the dews away
- ' To meet the fun upon the upland lawn.
- 'There at the foot of yonder nodding beech,
- ' That wreathes its old fantastic roots so high,
- ' His liftless length at noon-tide would he stretch,
- ' And pore upon the brook that babbles by.
- ' Hard by yon wood, now smiling as in scorn,
- ' Muttering his waiward fancies he would rove;
- ' Now drooping, woeful wan, like one forlorn,
- 'Or craz'd with care, or cross'd in hopeless love.

Dryden's Palamon and Arcite.

THE PROGRESS OF POESY.

STANZA I. 1. y 1. Awake, my glory, awake, lute and harp. Pfalms.

Pindar stiles his own poetry, with its musical accompanyments, Αίολητς μολπη, Αίολιδες χορδαί, Αίολιδων πνοαί αυλών,

Acolian fong, Acolian strings, the breath of the Acolian flute.

The fubject and fimile, as usual with Pindar, are here united: the various sources of Poetry, which gives life and lustre to all it touches, are here described; as well in its quiet majestic progress, enriching every subject, otherwise dry and barren, with all the pomp of diction, and luxuriant harmony of numbers; as in its more rapid and irressistible course, when swoln and hurried away by the conslict of tumultuous passions.

STANZA. I. 2.

Power of harmony to calm the turbulent passions of the soul. The thoughts are borrowed from the first Pythian of Pindar.

Tutta lontana dal camin del fole - Petrarch. Canz. 3. 2.

- II. 3. Progress of Poetry from Greece to Italy, and from Italy to England. Chaucer was not unacquainted with the writings of Dante or of Petrarch. The Earl of Surrey, and Sir Thomas Wyatt had travelled in Italy, and formed their taste there. Spencer imitated the Italian writers, and Milton improved on them: but this school expired soon after the Restoration, and a new one arose on the French model, which has subsisted ever since.

- III. 2. Milton.
  - y 4. —— flammantia moenia mundi. Lucret.
  - For the spirit of the living creature was in the wheels—and above the sirmament, that was over their heads, was the likeness of a throne, as the appearance of a sapphire-stone—this was the appearance of the glory of the Lord. Ezekiel I. 20, 26, 28.

  - y 12. Hast thou clothed his neck with thunder? Job.
- III. 3. 1/4. Words that weep, and tears that speak. Cowley.
  - We have had in our language no other odes of the sublime kind, than that of Dryden on St. Cecilia's day: for Cowley, who had his merit, yet wanted judgment, style, and harmony for such a task. That of Pope is not worthy of so great a man Mr. Mason indeed, of late days, has touched the true chords, and with a masterly hand, in some of his choruses; above all in the last of Caractacus,

Hark! heard you not you footstep dread? &c.

9. Διὸς πρὸς ὅρνιχα θεῖον. Olymp. 2. Pindar compares himself to that bird, and his enemies to ravens, that croak and clamour in vain below, while it pursues its flight, regardless of their noise.

THE BARD.

- STANZA I. 1. * 4. Mocking the air with colours idly spread. Shakesp. K. John.
  - y 5. The Hauberk was a texture of steel ringlets or links interwoven, forming a coat of mail, that sat close to the body, and adapted itself to all its motions.
  - y 9. The crested adder's pride. Dryden's Indian Queen.
- y 11. Snowdon was a name given by the Saxons to that mountainous tract, which the Welch themselves call Craigian-Eryri: it included all the highlands of Caernarvonshire and Merionethshire, as far east as the river Conway. R. Hygden, speaking of the castle built there by K. Edward the first, says, Ad ortum amnis Conway ad clivum montis Erery; and Matthew of Westminster (ad ann. 1283) Apud Aberconway, ad pedes montis Snowdoniae fecit erigi castrum forte.
- # 13, 14. Gilbert de Clare, surnamed The Red, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, son-in-law to K. Edward. Edmond de Mortimer Lord of Wigmore. They both were Lords Marchers, whose lands lay on the borders of Wales, and probably accompanied the King in this expedition.
- I. 2. $\forall 5$. The image was taken from a well-known picture of Raphaël, representing the supreme Being in the vision of Ezekiel. There are two of these paintings, both believed original, one at Florence, the other at Paris.
  - * 6. Shone, like a meteor, streaming to the wind. Milton's P. Lost.
  - I. 3. * 7. The shores of Caernarvonshire opposite to the isle of Anglesey.
    - * 10. Cambden and others observe, that eagles use annually to build their eyry among the rocks of Snowdon, which from thence, as many think, were named by the Welch Craigian-Eryri, that is, the crags of the eagles. At this day, as I am told, the highest point of Snowdon is called The Eagle's Nest. That bird is certainly no stranger to this island, as the Scots, and the people of Cumberland, Westmoreland, &c. can testify: it even has built its nest in the Peak of Derbyshire. See Willoughby's Ornithol, published by Ray.
    - * 12, 13. As dear to me as are the ruddy drops

      That visit my fad heart. Shakesp. Julius Caesar.
    - 1 19, 20. See the Norwegian ode that follows.

      - y 9. Isabel of France his adulterous Queen.
      - y 11. Triumphs of Edward III. in France.
    - II. 2. y 2. Death of that King abandon'd by his children, and even robbed in his last moments by his courtiers and his mistress.
      - 5. Edward the Black Prince, dead some time before his father.
      - 9. Magnificence of Richard II.'s reign. See Froiffard, and other contemporary writers.
    - II. 3. V 1. Richard the fecond (as we are told by Archbishop Scroop and the confederate Lords in their manifesto, by Thomas of Walsingham, and all the older writers) was starved to death. The story of his affassination by Sir Piers of Exon is of much later date.

- STANZA II. 3. y 7. Ruinous civil wars of York and Lancaster.
  - Henry VI. George Duke of Clarence, Edward V. and Richard Duke of York, believed to have been secretly murthered in the Tower of London. The oldest part of that structure is vulgarly attributed to Julius Caesar.
  - * 13. Margaret of Anjou, a woman of heroic spirit, who struggled hard to save her husband and her orown. Henry V.
  - y 14. Henry VI. very near being canonized. The line of Lancaster had no right of inheritance to the crown.
  - * 15. The White and Red Roses, devices of the two branches of York and Lancaster.
  - * 17. The filver Boar was the badge of Richard III. whence he was usually known in his own time by the name of The Boar.
  - III. 1.

    3. Eleanor of Castille died a few years after the conquest of Wales.

    The heroic proof she gave of her affection for her lord is well known. The monuments of his regret and forrow for the loss of her, are still to be seen at Northampton, Gaddington, Waltham, and in several other places.
    - Welch nation, that King Arthur was still alive in Fairyland, and should return again to reign over Britain. Both Merlin and Taliessin had prophesied, that the Welch should regain their sovereignty over this island; which seemed to be accomplished in the house of Tudor.
  - III. 2. * 7. Speed, relating an audience given by Queen Elizabeth to Paul Dzialiniki ambassador of Poland, says, "And thus she lion-like "rising daunted the malapert orator no less with her stately port "and majestical deporture, than with the tartnesse of her princelie "checkes."
    - VII. Taliesfin, chief of the Bards, slourished in the fixth century. His works are still preserved, and his memory held in high veneration among his countrymen.

  - y 9. The fuccession of poets after Milton's time.

THE FATAL SISTERS.

THE Valkyriur were female divinities, servants of Odin, or Woden, in the Gothic mythology: their name signifies Chusers of the slain. They were mounted on swift horses, with drawn swords in their hands; and in the throng of battle selected such as were destined to slaughter, and conducted them to Valhalla (the hall of Odin, or paradise of the brave) where they attended the banquet, and served the departed heroes with horns of mead and ale.

Shakefp. Julius Caefar.

THE DESCENT OF ODIN.

- 4. Niflheimer was the hell of the Gothic nations, and confifted of nine worlds, to which were configned all fuch as died of fickness, oldage, or by any other means than in battle: over it prefided Hela the Goddess of death.
- $ 90. Lok is the Evil Being who continues in chains till the Twilight of the Gods approaches, when he shall break his confinement; the human race, the stars, and sun, shall disappear; the earth sink in the seas, and fire consume the skies: even Odin himself and his kindred Gods shall perish. For a further explanation of this mythology, see Mallet in his curious introduction to the history of Denmark. 1755.
